Secretary Cleveland issued positive orders that the prizes were to be awarded on the first day and posted as soon as made—an innovation that made a decided hit with the exhibitors and visitors alike. The quality this year was far more evident than ever, as the breeders had kept only the cream of their flocks for this event and every mediocre bird is in the breeding pen at this time.

They are the outstanding feature of the supply line.

The Certified Farms had their model exhibit and their English poulterer, Mr. Huff, created a great deal of interest in his hourly talks to the housekeeper. There is something really practical about these talks, as it shows how to select your table chickens and how to prepare them for the table in such a chapter of accidents. The dates for the next show were announced as from Deen at this time.

The surprises of the show were the Light Brahma classes, an old variety that many thought had passed out as a commercial breed. Here they are the largest classes in the show and there has been a battle of champions. The next boom in poultry seems to be on the Sussex, an old English variety used in Sussex by the fatteners for the London market, which make a splendid table bird. A good variety which always is admired is the Partridge Rocks, and in this variety and the Columbian a splendid win was made by the Bonaparte Poultry Ranch, owned by John Hays Hammond, Jr., and ably managed by Mr. Mackay. Exhibitors from England are missing this year, but Canada is well represented, and a member of Parliament, Joseph Russell, made a good win on his Wyandottes. So did Charles Nixon.

Arthur Duston also was out in good array. E. B. Thompson made the same old killing in Barred Rocks. It does not matter who the judge is, his birds always are at the top.
